Hurlburt Youth Programs:

WHERE LEARNING AND FUN GO HAND-IN-HAND

Contributed by Lauren Cortez Elizardo
Layout by Emily MacDonald

When our Airmen and Civilians need to support the mission, they trust that their children are being cared for in the best possible ways. The mission at Hurlburt Field's Child & Youth Programs is to keep the children in their care safe, while being impactful in more ways than one.

With the program consisting of 44 Youth and 152 School Age children across eight different schools, their goal is education through recreation: Providing programs and assistance that foster children's interest. While in care, children have the opportunity to visit different educational spaces that encourage growth and development. The Learning Lounge offers help with schoolwork in a fun and creative way. They can earn points for doing homework and cash them in for prizes. In other areas like STEM and Drama, activities are geared towards creativity. Nature classrooms give children the opportunity to be nurtured in nature and teaches them an abundance of things from animal tracks to plant life cycles. By implementing the Boys and Girls Club curriculum in the Youth Programs, they can provide the most programming and support possible outside of a traditional classroom setting.

But it's not all work and no play! The program prides itself on hosting events throughout the year to celebrate and showcase the youth in their care. Annual spaghetti nights, quarterly talent shows and an end of summer celebration for all the children in the program are just a few of the highlight's children can look forward to. The "Back to School Bash" helps ease anxiety and lets the youth celebrate the coming year. And when August comes, new faces are welcomed at Youth Programs. Students transitioning into the program can take a tour of the facility with their parents. It can be a scary change starting kindergarten and leaving the CDC, but the teachers and staff try their best to make them feel excited and ready to start the school year.

The Hurlburt Youth Program also knows that being a military child is one of the hardest jobs. These children weather PCSs, deployments and TDYs. In a lifestyle that can be so inconsistent, the consistency of the friendly and caring faces at the Hurlburt Youth Programs can be just what they need during difficult times. And with the help of other youth in the program, they host "Anchors for Life." A safe space for children going through hardships, where they receive kits to help give them a little more support during unstable times.

The Hurlburt Youth Program also knows that being a military child is one of the hardest jobs. These children weather PCSs, deployments and TDYs. In a lifestyle that can be so inconsistent,

The hard work and dedication of the Hurlburt Youth Programs can be seen on all the smiling faces you see as you walk in the building. These children are cared for and having fun, fostering knowledge and relationships with their caregivers.

The Director of Hurlburt Youth Programs, Mr. Zollie Ford, says, "Childcare workers must have a passion for kids and be impactful through their own interests." At Hurlburt Youth Programs, you can be assured that they're helping their workers flourish and grow so the children in their care can too.

VPK AT HURLBURT FIELD

Voluntary Pre-Kindergarten (VPK) is a state-funded program that allows children ages 4–5 years old begin learning the curriculum that will set them up for success when Kindergarten comes. At Child Development Center (CDC) East, Director Deborah Plante and Lead VPK Director/Teacher Sheila Fuller know how important the program is, not just to the children but the caregivers as well. At all Child Development Centers in the Air Force, the Early Learning Matters (ELM) is the mandatory curriculum. But on top of that, VPK classrooms must also implement the VPK curriculum for three hours a day.

A typical day in a VPK classroom is filled with lots of learning and fun. The children participate in circle time and practice lessons ranging from letter recognition to engaging in story time. During "Centers," free play is geared towards learning through play, while implementing activities that go hand-in-hand with the lessons being taught. However, the most important skills that children in VPK foster are their social and emotional skills, learning how to adapt and problem solve in a school setting.

VPK teachers know how important it is to help the children in their classroom grow and prepare for their next educational endeavor. Graduation from VPK is a big milestone. Teachers and staff all step up to celebrate and help host a graduation for the students and parents in their classrooms. When it's time for students to transition to elementary school and Youth Programs, their VPK teachers are there every step of the way. Helping to guide them and be a familiar face, VPK teachers accompany the students on a field trip to their elementary school and Youth Programs.

Being a VPK teacher isn't an easy job, but it is rewarding. Seeing children flourish and gain knowledge that sets the foundation for their education is what VPK is all about. "VPK works, you can see the difference when a child was in the program. Kindergarten teachers can see the difference, it's so important," says Sheila Fuller. VPK at Hurlburt Field creates an environment for teachers to prepare and nurture children through education.

FACES OF FSS

CHILD & YOUTH PROGRAMS

has been working with Child and Youth Programs for 10 years. She has enjoyed her time connecting and making an impact on military children. She believes everyone can benefit from YP with the unique programs they offer, some of which include two certified Outdoor Nature Classrooms! Her past experience includes starting as an entry level Child and Youth Program Assistant, all the way to a target level CYPA.

MISHA CORE

has worked with Child and Youth programs for four years, and has found her favorite part about working with the facility is making daily connections with the youth. She makes sure to speak to each one as they walk through the door in the mornings, and makes it a point to learn about them to keep their conversations going. "A person who is new to Hurlburt should visit our facility to see what we offer; our center is like no other," says Misha. One thing she says that makes them stand out from other centers is providing a variety of environments both indoor and outdoor for youth to enjoy, as well as a plethora of activities that cover a wide range of interests.

MARIA HOPSON

has been a part of the CYP team for seven years, where she spent three of those years in Germany. Maria and her team here at Hurlburt take pride in how well they work together with the same goal in mind: providing the best care and support to military families. Maria believes what makes Hurlburt CYP stand out from others is providing top notch care at a very reasonable price! Her favorite part about her job is cooking delicious food for the children and ensuring they receive nutritious meals for the day.

FACES OF FSS

CDC East and VPK Program

has been working with Child and Youth Programs for five years, and loves working with military children and their families, and supporting the Mission. "It is an honor for families to entrust their children's care to us while they go to work. "I truly enjoy watching the staff grow in their professional development," says Deborah. She says people should visit the Child & Youth Program facilities because they offer quality and affordable childcare to family members, with staff who are dedicated to creating a positive impact on the children they work with daily. Some of her favorite things to do at the CDC are listening to the laughter from teaching staff and the children, the parent participation, the day to day activities, and the excitement of the children as they come into and leave the program.

SHELIA FULLER

has worked with Child and Youth Programs and VPK for four years. She has enjoyed working with the children, especially the VPK program, and getting to know each and every youth that walks in the door. She says what makes CYP so amazing is that they offer a comprehensive childcare facility. Not only do they offer education to the children, but also services that parents can use as well. She is proud to say that CYP offers great support to military families through programs like KIT (Kids Included Together), an onsite Speech and Language Pathologist, and Military and Family life counselors. Her experience includes working in the childcare field for 28 years, including being a floater, teacher assistant, Early Childhood Education Manager, and now the lead VPK teacher/Director at CDC East.
