REENERGIZING

the Key Spouse Program

A fundamental Commanders' initiative, the Key Spouse Program, enhances cohesion amid commands and their families, bolstered by the Military & Family Readiness Center (M&FRC)'s continuous training and functional support services. With a reenergized focus, the program is set to change from the historical leadership spouse roots to a more diverse and far-reaching alliance.

Two teams have shown how innovation and heart can change an entire vision and pave a way forward. The 1 Special Operations Aircraft Maintenance Squadron (1 SOAMXS) team took a pioneering approach by utilizing a variety of unit friendly ways to create an inclusive group of civilian to military, military to military, single parents, single Airmen, Exceptional Family Member Program (EFMP), and LGBTQ+. The newly named and revitalized Ghost Rider Family Team (GFT) has become a base-wide phenomenon along with their sister-unit-in-vision, the 1 Special Operations Communications Squadron (1 SOCS), whose deployment support events and activities have brought a closer bond all around.

The GFT contributes its success to a strong leadership presence and a passion for Airmen and their families. "The Key Spouse Program is a commander's program meant to support the families... it's the heart of their unit. When your Airmen do not feel connection, resiliency, retention, then mission readiness suffer. We even survived through an entire leadership transition and are so happy that Maj Nicole Lane, MSgt Jason Stone and MSgt Ashley Kurtz seamlessly picked up where they left off, ensuring continuity and maintaining the program's effectiveness."
- Laura Jane Browning, GFT Mentor.

"Getting into the units and having real connections with the people - not just a name on a Facebook page, but showing them we care by showing up. Whether it be bringing snacks on a random day, coming to squadron hangouts, or just being vulnerable and sharing your highs and lows. Making it welcoming for all will make your team more approachable." - Morgan Harrison, GFT Member.

The 1 SOCS team Key Spouse, Rebekah VanHove, shared some helpful insight into how they make their program thrive. "Our squadron has a commander and leadership team that is not only passionate about caring for the Airmen, but the families as well. For our deployment event, families with loved ones deployed were invited to help us fill the care packages, allowing us to better personalize their loved one's package and provide support to them during a hard time. Once Airmen started receiving boxes it was such an overwhelming feeling knowing how thankful they were. It wouldn't have been possible without the support of the commander, leadership, squadron, and community."
- Rebekah VanHove, Key Spouse Mentor.
